The American Journal of Clinical Nutrition

Overview

A highly rated peer-reviewed, primary research journal in nutrition and dietetics, The American Journal of Clinical Nutrition (AJCN) publishes the latest research on topics in nutrition, such as obesity, vitamins and minerals, nutrition and disease, and energy metabolism. The purpose of AJCN is to publish original research studies relevant to human and clinical nutrition. Well-controlled clinical studies that describe scientific mechanisms, efficacy, and safety of dietary interventions in the context of disease prevention or a health benefit will be considered. Public health and epidemiologic studies relevant to human nutrition, and innovative investigations of nutritional questions that employ epigenetic, genomic, proteomic, and metabolomic approaches are encouraged. Solicited editorials, book reviews, solicited or unsolicited review articles, invited controversy position papers, and letters to the Editor that relate to prior AJCN articles are essential components of the AJCN. All submitted material with scientific content will undergo peer review by the Editors or their designees before acceptance for publication.

1. Applicability

This TC and all modifications to this TC are subject to applications, proposals and agreements made with and by third party or its third party if agreed (the "Client") relating to the products and/or services of Elsevier ("the Products and/or Services") and, along with the relevant Elsevier order acknowledgment, shall form the entire agreement between the parties (the "TC"). They supersede any previous agreement or understanding between the parties. This TC shall remain in force after the completion of the Products and/or Services subject to supplementary agreements and written variations. Should Products or Services be delivered to third parties or for which service thereof is subject to an additional security interest, this TC shall remain in force after the Products and/or Services have been delivered to the third party or for which service thereof is subject to an additional security interest.

2. Acceptance and modification of the order

Any modifications to the TC and/or products or services described in this TC, budget, schedule or terms and conditions which are subject to written acknowledgement, may result in an adjustment to the final price and/or delivery schedule at Elsevier’s discretion. If at the request of the Client, Elsevier reserves additional terms or conditions which have been agreed upon by both parties in the relevant order, including such things as pre-production, pre-press, technical design, end and/or address, weight and the like. All drawings, descriptive matter, specifications and advertising matter in Elsevier’s catalogues or brochures are issued or published for the purpose of giving an approximate description of the Products and Services described therein. They will form part of the TC. Publishing errors, including, but not limited to, typographical errors, having no significant effect on the editorial content as defined and characteristics of the Products and Services, cannot be considered a reason for reworking delivery or, as the case may be, modifying the agreed prices.

3. Force majeure

In connection with the performance of the TC, Elsevier shall not be liable to, or in the name of, and at the request of the Client. An event or circumstance constituting force majeure is limited to events or circumstances beyond the control of any party. Depending on the event or circumstances that the party is subject to an event of force majeure, then such party shall be relieved of those obligations to the extent it is impracticable to comply as closely as possible with its obligations set forth in this TC, to avoid the effects of such event to the extent possible.

4. Payment

Payment does not include a payment of reasonable and bona fide expenditures, such as travel or lodging expenses, which are necessary and directly related to the performance of the Services or the execution or performance of a contract provided that such payments are permissible under the Applicable Law. If the Client cancels an order either fully or partially, a cancellation fee may be charged. All cancellations must be made in writing. This fee will be calculated to cover any external or internal costs which have been incurred or committed up to and including the date of cancellation. No new order will be accepted on any account. All cancellations must be approved in writing. Product cancellations will not be accepted without a written agreement from Elsevier. No credit will be extended on any cancellations or returns. If, at the request of the Client, Elsevier renders additional services, such things as format, printing processes, advertising materials, etc., which have not been previously specifically identified by Elsevier, Elsevier shall commercially reasonable efforts to supply with descriptions of the Products and Services agreed by both parties in the relevant order, including such things as pre-production, pre-press, technical design, end and/or address, weight and the like. All drawings, descriptive matter, specifications and advertising matter in Elsevier’s catalogues or brochures are issued or published for the purpose of giving an approximate description of the Products and Services described therein. They will form part of the TC. Publishing errors, including, but not limited to, typographical errors, having no significant effect on the editorial content as defined and characteristics of the Products and Services, cannot be considered a reason for reworking delivery or, as the case may be, modifying the agreed prices.

5. Liability and claims

Liability, loss, damages, claims, or causes of action, including reasonable legal fees and expenses incurred by Elsevier, rights to permit the use of the Advertising Content by Elsevier for the purposes of this TC; (ii) the use, reproduction, distribution or display of any content of the Advertising Content which is not the subject of any of the prohibitions set forth in the TC, if any; (iii) any liability for any reproduction or display of the Advertising Content if such reproduction or display is not authorized in writing by Elsevier; (iv) any errors or inaccuracies contained in the Advertising Content; (v) any claims or demands against Elsevier arising out of any such acts or omissions of the Client; (vi) any liability for the Client’s own acts or omissions except to the extent required by applicable law.

6. Data protection

The Client and its employees, representatives, or employees of the Products or other products of Elsevier in its offices, shall be required to exercise reasonable care in the use of, and to be responsible for, and to ensure that they are responsible for, the confidentiality of the Products and Services in accordance with the Data Protection Act 1998 and all other data protection laws.

7. Intellectual property

If no dates are so specified, delivery/performance will be made within a reasonable time. Unless otherwise agreed in writing, delivery shall be made to the Client's order or, if no delivery address is specified, to the Client's address. If delivery/performance is not made within a reasonable time, the Client may, at its option, cancel the order. No modification to the agreed product or service description, budget or schedule, as set forth in the order acknowledgement, may result in an adjustment to the final price and/or delivery schedule at Elsevier’s discretion. If at the request of the Client, Elsevier reserves additional terms or conditions which have been agreed upon by both parties in the relevant order, including such things as pre-production, pre-press, technical design, end and/or address, weight and the like. All drawings, descriptive matter, specifications and advertising matter in Elsevier’s catalogues or brochures are issued or published for the purpose of giving an approximate description of the Products and Services described therein. They will form part of the TC. Publishing errors, including, but not limited to, typographical errors, having no significant effect on the editorial content as defined and characteristics of the Products and Services, cannot be considered a reason for reworking delivery or, as the case may be, modifying the agreed prices.

8. Force majeure

If the Client cancels an order either fully or partially, a cancellation fee may be charged. All cancellations must be made in writing. This fee will be calculated to cover any external or internal costs which have been incurred or committed up to and including the date of cancellation. No new order will be accepted on any account. All cancellations must be approved in writing. Product cancellations will not be accepted without a written agreement from Elsevier. No credit will be extended on any cancellations or returns. If, at the request of the Client, Elsevier renders additional services, such things as format, printing processes, advertising materials, etc., which have not been previously specifically identified by Elsevier, Elsevier shall commercially reasonable efforts to supply with descriptions of the Products and Services agreed by both parties in the relevant order, including such things as pre-production, pre-press, technical design, end and/or address, weight and the like. 9. Force majeure

In connection with the performance of the TC, Elsevier shall not be liable to, or in the name of, and at the request of the Client. An event or circumstance constituting force majeure is limited to events or circumstances beyond the control of any party. Depending on the event or circumstances that the party is subject to an event of force majeure, then such party shall be relieved of those obligations to the extent it is impracticable to comply as closely as possible with its obligations set forth in this TC, to avoid the effects of such event to the extent possible.
